

ABSTRACT

In an interface apparatus and a method thereof for a display system displaying an image (an animation, a still image and a text) and a text through an I2C (IIC) interface of a main CPU without operating a video codec in a standby mode of a display system, the apparatus includes a main CPU for outputting data including an image and a text according to an operation mode of a system, a video codec being inputted the data and outputting the data by interfacing with the main CPU according to the operation mode and a LCD driver being inputted the data through the video codec in accordance with the operation mode or being inputted the data from the main CPU through the I2C interface of the main CPU and displaying the inputted image and text on the screen.